The following are reported to be among the current directives of the KKE concerning the labor movement:

- a. Committees should be formed in all industries and on all ships in order to take action for winning satisfaction of the workers' demands.
- b. KKE members and fellow-travellers should try to isolate the executive committees of the unions to which they belong and gain control of the unions.
- c. In cases where KKE members are unable to gain control of the unions' executive committees, they are to demand a vote of confidence and thus hope to remove the committees. If successful in doing this, they must not nominate candidates for a new executive committee until they receive new orders.
- d. In cases where efforts to remove the executive committees fail, KKE members should form opposing factions which would later be combined when feasible.
- e. Party members belonging to unions are ordered to keep their financial obligations to the union up to date in order to be ready for action.
